

A Roman Town: Tarraco

Objectius

- .To learn and use words (public places) and phrases related to a Roman settlement: Tàrraco.
- .To use the past tense and the infinitive of purpose to explain the object of the public places.
- .To make a leaflet or a brochure about the Roman remains from Tàrraco to visit.

Descripció de la proposta

Some curious facts about the Roman life are introduced to engage the students. Then we focus on how the Roman people dressed out of the historical sources on their important legacy. Later, the main features or buildings in an ancient Roman city like Tàrraco are presented. They students end up reproducing a dialogue with a tourist to tell the way to the places and producing a leaflet to appeal the reader/visitor to call on the different locations. This project is a result of a GEP1 programme.

Aspectes didàctics i metodològics

These five sessions are based on a CLIL approach. The new input of language and content of the project is very close to the student – monuments of their own town. Knowledge is shared within pair work, group work and outside the classroom context

Continguts, competències i processos que es treballen de forma destacada

History

.Past linked to the present with remains /ruins in our city.

.Roman public buildings with social functions.

.leaflet or a brochure.

English

.the use of the past tense.

.In contrast with the past we introduce the infinitive of purpose to state the function of each public place (so they have to distinguish whether to use the past or the infinitive after “to”).

.To revise language already learnt they have to practise ‘directions’.

.To complete the leaflet following the style of the model text given they have to use appealing language such as imperatives.
